

Spy Dog in Space

Written & Illustrated By

Archer Lemer

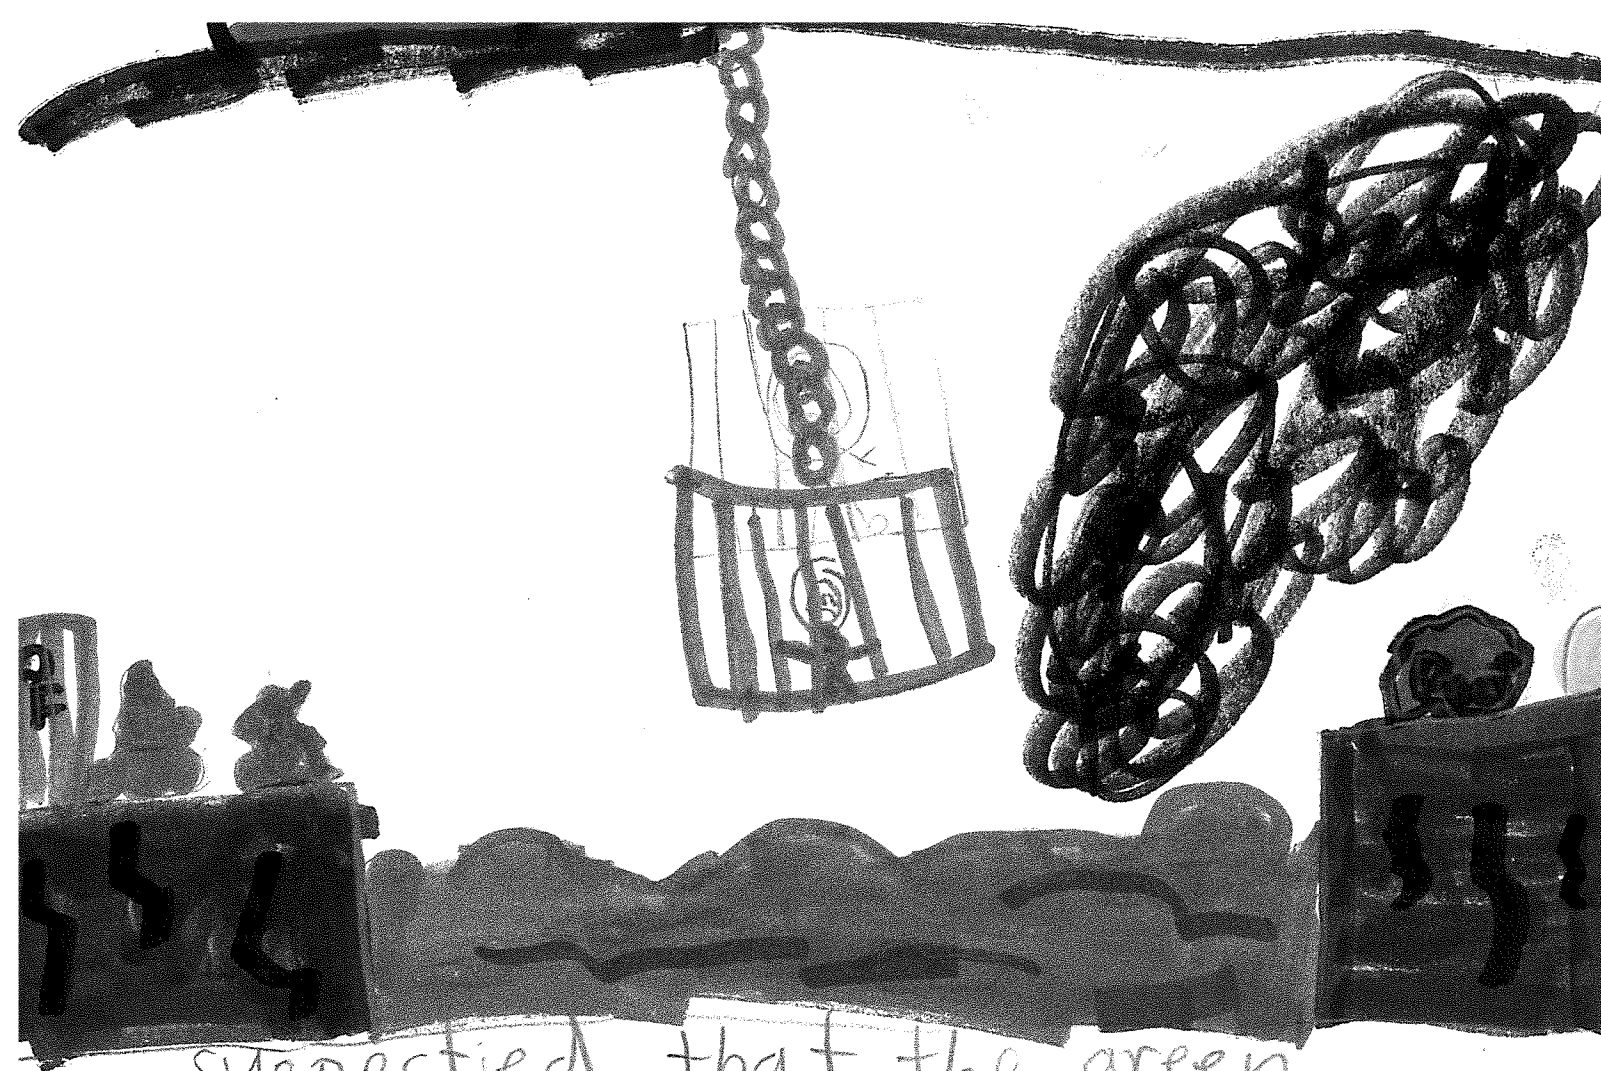

One day, Spy Dog got a notification about a rocket crashing on mars. Spy Dog went to investigate the crash. He got into his rocketship and blasted off. Half way there the engine stoped. Spy Dog went to start the engine again. When Spy Dog got there some green slimy stuff was there. Spy Dog wondered what happened. Spy Dog didn't

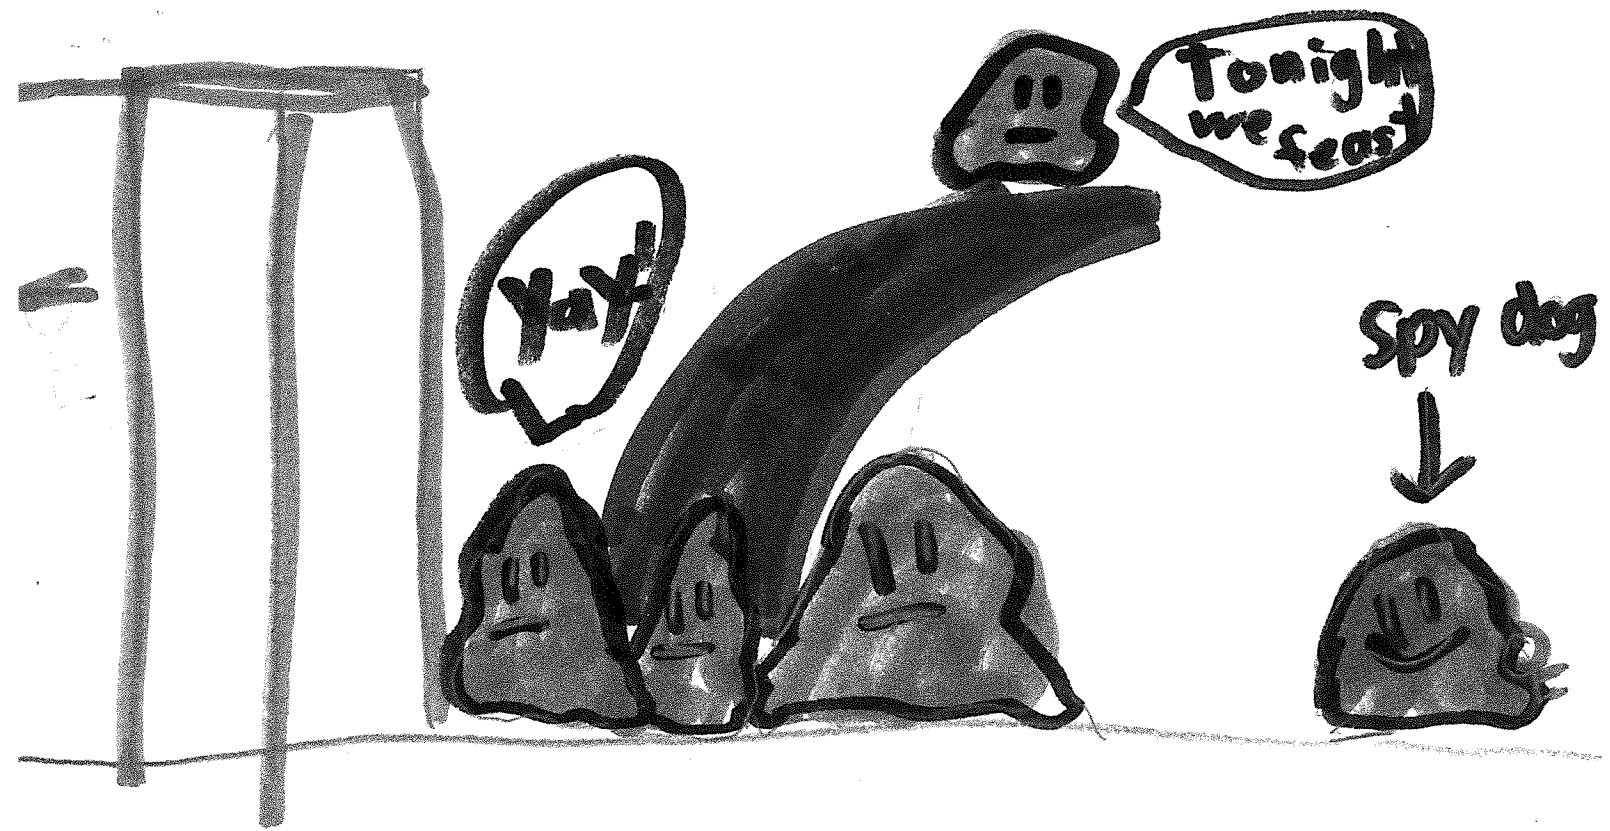

I know what happen. Sp, Sp, dog just turned on the engine and continued to fly to mars. When he got there he went inside the ship that crashed and saw some more green slimy stuff. He looked around. He saw nothing. Then, he saw footsteps leading away from the rocket ship. He followed followed the footsteps to a cave. He went inside. It was pitch black. Only a little light shone. He followed the light. The light grew bigger and bigger. The light Spy Dog was following was actually lava! In the middle was a cage. In the cage was the asternot! Spy dog saw what was on the other side of the lava was aliens! Spy Dog suspected that the green slimey stuff was from the aliens. Spy Dog saw the Key that he needed to open the cage. It was heavily guarded. Spy Dog reached for his back pouch and pulled out a machine. It was disguise machine. Spy Dog turned it on and selected the alien and then "Poof" he looked like a alien.

Spy Dog turned on his telaporteter and telaported there. Spy Dog walked past the guards and grabed the the key. Spy Dog went out of the cage that the key was in. He got out of the crowd that the aliens were in. He put on his invisabilade cloak and his lava boots. When he got to the cage, he put the key in. He saved the astronaut from the aliens.

They went to Spy Dog's rocket ship and blasted off to earth.
