

An Unknown

Fact about

dragons

By mich sebek

One of the townspeople noticed dark smog rolling into town. He went to the king to alert him.

The king sent his knight to investigate. The knight rode deep into the smog. As he rode, the smog became mixed with flames of fire. The knight then knew what they were dealing with: A dragon.

The knight rode further into the black smoke to find the dragon. He could hardly see, but suddenly a giant beast was standing in front of him. His nostrils were breathing out smoke and fire. The knight drew his sword, but suddenly the dragon started sniffing the air, and then the knight's back pocket. The knight had put a banana in his pocket for a snack.

The knight realized the dragon wanted the banana and gave it to him.
The dragon gobbled it up in a snap and stopped breathing flames of fire.
The town firefighters started putting out the fires.

From then on, the townspeople started bringing the dragon boxes of bananas every day.

Caw Caw!

They'd bring the bananas to the dragon at his cave.

Dragon's
Cave

The dragon ate his bananas inside his cave. He was happy the people had discovered the fact that dragons love bananas.

MICAH

ABOUT THE AUTHOR:

Micah has been a self-proclaimed storyteller and artist since he was 4 years old. He spends his days bringing his imagination to life.

MARCH 2025